Helia Gol is one of those students whose level of engagement was obvious right from the start in my Dawson drawing class last fall session!

This drawing class allowed me to see all the important qualities that make it clear that she has all it takes to succeed in this new endeavor: she was never afraid of challenges, was hard-working (she mentions that in her letter) and produced great drawings. She knows what she wants and the self-confidence she has been showing in my class is what makes her a wonderful asset to the Design Program.

Her letter of intent proves her unrelenting commitment to push forward and shows that she is rigorous in her thinking. She is aware of the issues she wants to tackle based on her own experience. Her openness, perseverance, total commitment, curiosity, are all essential qualities for her goal to be realized successfully.

I strongly recommend that Helia Gol be accepted in the Design Program at Concordia.
